MINIJUST FOR SMALL BREED DOGS

DID YOU KNOW?

Meeting Increased Energy Needs

Miniature and Toy dogs have greater energy requirements than their large breed counterparts. For example, a dog of 130 pounds needs 3000 kcal per day, whereas a 6.5 pound dog needs 300 kcal (nearly twice as much per pound of bodyweight). At the same time, genetic predisposition, lifestyle and treats may lead to problems with obesity.

MINI offers seven complete and well balanced diets with optimum protein and fat levels to help maintain the appropriate weight level for your small breed dog, without contributing to excess weight gain.

Anticipating the Effects of Time

Small breeds are noted for their exceptional longevity which means additional exposure to the effects of ageing and a higher risk of age-related problems.

MINI adult and mature diets include antioxidants from Vitamins C and E, Green Tea and Grapefruit which may help to protect cells from ageing. While reduced levels of phosphorus and sodium are important considerations for dogs suffering from overworked kidneys or heart problems.

Maintaining Healthy Skin and a Beautiful Coat

Up to 35% of the protein in a diet goes towards growth and regeneration of skin and hair. And a diet deficient in essential nutrients can have an immediate and visible effect upon your dog's coat.

MINI diets include Chicken Fat and Salmon Oil, sources of Omega 6 and Omega 3 essential fatty acids. These are combined with Zinc and Biotin to enhance skin renewal and promote a beautiful, glossy coat.
